London Hydro Advises of Temporary Outages to Move Labatt Tanks

London, Ontario – December 5, 2005 – London Hydro will deliver cards to homes and businesses today and tomorrow to advise of temporary power outages that may occur on Thursday December 8, 2005.

On December 8, 2005 Labatt's brewery is having 8 large tanks moved from Toronto and Sarnia to their Richmond and Grey Street location. The oversize tanks will be escorted from the north end of the city, beginning at the intersection of Fanshawe Park Road and Highbury Avenue.

London Hydro has relocated as much of its infrastructure as possible to accommodate the move and reduce power outages to a minimum. However, it will be necessary to lift or disconnect lines to safely move the tanks along the designated route.

Customers along Hamilton Road from Egerton to Wellington could be without power for up to four hours during this process. Once the tanks have moved through each area, London Hydro will restore power as soon as it is safe to do so.

"We are pleased to assist Labatt in their expansion process and sincerely appreciate the patience of our customers that will be temporarily without power, and suggest that Londoners select another route to travel through this section of the city during the move." said Bernie Watts, CEO London Hydro.
